PAUL RYAN DISTANCES HIMSELF FROM TRUMP MUSLIM BAN

House speaker Paul Ryan, the top U.S. elected Republican, on Tuesday distanced himself from presidential candidate Donald Trump's proposed ban on Muslims from a variety of countries in a further sign of establishment unease with Trump's agenda. Trump gave his first speech on the Orlando, Florida, massacre Monday, a day after the attack at a gay nightclub that was the deadliest mass shooting in U.S. modern history. The New York mogul said if elected Nov. 8, he would temporarily suspend immigration from areas of the world where there is "a proven history of terrorism." In a subsequent tweet, he said he was referring to "nations tied to Islamic terror." REUTERS

JUROR IN STANFORD SEX ASSAULT TRIAL: 'JUSTICE NOT SERVED'

A juror in the Stanford University sexual assault case wrote to the judge expressing his disappointment over what was seen by many as a very lenient sentence handed down to former student-athlete Brock Turner. Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Aaron Persky is facing a recall campaign following public anger over his decision to sentence Turner, 20, to six months in jail for sexually assaulting an unconscious woman after a party. The juror, who requested to remain anonymous, said he was disappointed and "vehemently" disagreed with the June 2 sentence, according to the letter, which was posted online late Monday by the Palo Alto Weekly newspaper. Prosecutors had sought a six-year prison term for Turner after he was convicted on three felony counts of sexual assault for the January 2015 attack. REUTERS

RUSSIAN SPIES HACK US DEMOCRATIC PARTY COMPUTERS

Russian government hackers penetrated the computer network of the Democratic National Committee and gained access to the entire database of opposition research on Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump, the committee and security researchers said Tuesday. The intrusion is emblematic of the sophistication of Russian hackers, who have long been viewed by intelligence officials as the most talented of U.S. adversaries in cyberspace. Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee, confirmed the breach to Reuters. It was first reported by the Washington Post. REUTERS

LaGuardia Airport renderings GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

LaGuardia renovation breaks ground to bring back NY's 'mojo'

Vice President Joe Biden hopes other states look at New York and begin updating their infrastructure.

ANGY ALTAMIRANO
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Construction has finally begun at LaGuardia Airport for a major redesign of the Queens facility looking to help bring New York back to the top and push other states across the country to do more with their infrastructures.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo was joined by Vice President Joe Biden on Tuesday afternoon to announce the groundbreaking of the $4 billion renovation — a cost which two-thirds will be financed through private funds and existing passengers fees.

Earlier this month, the governor announced that the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey — which oversees the facility — had reached a 35-year lease agreement and financial close with LaGuardia Gateway Partners, which will be managing the design, construction and financing of the redesign.

"The airport is really the front door to New York when you think about it," Cuomo said.

"This is not going to be just a rebuilding of what it was, it's going to be a whole new airport."

Once demolition is complete, the first steps of construction will begin for the brand new Terminal B that will lie closer to the highway — increasing airport taxiways by more than 2 miles and reducing airport ground delays.

The terminal will have a central hall and concourse connecting it to Terminal C and, for the first time, creating a unified airport as well as serve as the location for an AirTrain station.

Tuesday's groundbreaking also marked the start of the construction of the new roadway network, and a new 3,000-space parking garage. Some of the new facilities are expected to start opening in 2018, with all of Terminal B slate to open to the public by the end of 2021.

"For many years New York sort of lost its mojo. What [makes] New York New York is its ambition, is its creativity, is its capacity. New Yorkers never said no, there's nothing we can never do," Cuomo said. "This is saying yes we can, yes we will."

Cuomo added that the redesign of the airport is more than just giving the facility — which back in 2014 was compared to a third-world country by Biden — a facelift, but will also connect with other developments in infrastructure across the city.

Some of the developments include having an AirTrain not only connecting passengers within the airport but between Manhattan and the airport; providing ferry access; connecting two new LIRR tracks; and also expanding the Jacob Javits Center.

"If you are not investing and you are not building, you are standing still and everybody is going to pass you," Cuomo said. "What New Yorkers are saying ... nobody is passing us by."

During the groundbreaking, Biden poked fun at his 2014 comment but made sure to let New Yorkers know that he did not mean it as an insult but rather believed that the "the greatest city in the world needs the greatest infrastructure in the world."

"This isn't rocket science," he said.

He added that the comment was prompted following a conversation he had with his son, who told him that when he had gone to LaGuardia he had seen an out of service escalator with a sign that said it would be repaired in two months.

The vice president added that New York should serve as motivation for other states in the country to help the United States stand out from countries across the world and put an emphasis on infrastructure across the country.

"We are the epicenter of energy for the 21st century," Biden said. "We've gone from recession to recovery and we are on the verge of resurgence, if we have the guts to grab it."

Trendy Philly cheaper than gritty NYC

A side-by-side neighborhood comparison of median rents in the two cities.

LEN MANIACE
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Though New York's been winning the baseball rivalry between the Mets and the Phillies lately, when it comes to bargains on rental apartments, Philadelphia comes out on top.

New York City neighborhoods considered working-class only a decade or two ago now outpace apartments in some of Philadelphia's poshest sections, according to data provided by NeighborhoodX, a real estate research and analytics startup.

For instance, the median monthly rent for a one-bedroom apartment in gentrifying but still-gritty Long Island City in Queens was $2,900, well above the $1,900 figure for Philadelphia's long-fashionable Rittenhouse Square and Logan Square residential districts. Comparable neighborhoods where New York's elite might be drawn are Manhattan's Upper West Side, with a median one-bedroom rent of $3,600, or classic brownstone Brooklyn Heights, where one-bedroom rents average $3,100.

For those seeking a neighborhood with a young, creative vibe, New York's traditional answer has been the East Village, with Williamsburg gaining street cred the last 20 years. In Philadelphia, there's Fishtown.

This working-class neighborhood of narrow streets and row houses has sprouted studios, galleries, bars, restaurants and music venues. While the median one-bedroom in Fishtown rents for $1,600, those apartments in Williamsburg and the East Village go for the nonbohemian figures of $3,200 and $2,900, respectively.

Fishtown is even a bargain compared to Staten Island's St. George area, where the ferry docks and median one bedrooms go for $1,800 a month.

Demand is a factor in NYC's pricey pads. New York is growing much faster than the City of Brotherly Love. In two decades New York's population rose by 1.2 million people to 8.55 million in 2015, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. In the same time, Philadelphia's population rose by 71,000 to 1.57 million.

Put another way, New York City added enough people to fill up three-quarters of Philadelphia.

That doesn't mean there aren't relative bargains in New York, only that they are farther from Midtown's jobs, the city's cultural attractions and even basic amenities, such as supermarkets.

Mott Haven in the Bronx is one such area, where a median one-bedroom goes for $1,500 a month. Much of the housing is in tenements and New York City public housing developments. But Mott Haven also has three historic residential districts, and some sections of the neighborhood are showing signs of gentrification.

Housing is being renovated and new shops opening, including that harbinger of change, gourmet coffee shops. Two opened since April.

One needn't go so far, nor do without as much, in Pennsylvania's biggest city. The median one-bedroom rents for $1,100 in Spruce Hill, a neighborhood just west of University City, a cluster of academic institutions which includes the Ivy League University of Pennsylvania.

Millennials want to live in NYC, but Philly is the better choice

Perhaps millennials don't know what's best for them.

In a recent survey, one in five Gen Y-ers said New York is their ideal city, with fewer than 1 percent saying the same of Philadelphia. But research has shown that Philly has outranked its more metropolitan competitors when it comes to qualities millennials say they value.

Abodo, an apartment-search site, surveyed 2,000 people born between 1982 and 1998. Respondents were asked to rate 20 qualities,

PHILLY RANKS NO. 17
AMONG CITIES IN WHICH MILLENNIALS
MOST WANT TO LIVE

including a thriving job market, rent and housing market affordability, presence of hiking trails and quality of pizza, on a scale of one to 10, from least to greatest importance.

Despite common assertions that millennials are "lazy" or have "lesser work ethic," the top three qualities Generation Y values most are economic in nature: a thriving job market (8.19), affordable rent (7.94) and affordable home prices (7.55), followed by parks or hiking trails (6.52) and nonchain local restaurants (6.49).

When asked to pick a city they thought was the best choice, nearly 20 percent chose New York City. San Francisco came in second, with 10.3 percent, and one in 10 chose the Pacific Northwest, with Seattle and Portland each fetching just above 9 percent.

Philadelphia rang in at No. 17 with 0.89 percent, far below Los Angeles, Chicago, Boston and Washington. When analysts broke down the preferred city of each gender and age group, New York ranked No. 1 across all ages and both genders. Philadelphia was found to be in the Top 10 only among respondents aged 18-22. The city actually came in 10th.

Ironically, Philadelphia hit 95 percent of millennials' criteria, according to Abodo's compiled research.

New York City, Boston, Washington, Portland and Seattle all tied at No. 2 with 90 percent.

Based on its research, Abodo found Philly to have a good job market, affordable rent and home prices, quality pizza, walkability, an LGBTQ-friendly community, quality public transportation and a lake, river or beach nearby. The only mark Philly misses is a highly rated public school system.

New York City, by contrast, was found to have neither affordable rent nor a highly rated school system. In fact, the only city determined to have a quality public school system was Seattle.

It's not breaking news that rents in New York City and San Francisco are expensive, but it seems the rate keeps going up.

A study released last month by Smart Asset found residents in NYC need a six-figure salary to live comfortably: an average of $158,229 annually. By contrast, Philadelphians can live comfortably on a $65,100 salary. ALEXIS SACHDEV

Midtown rendering ALL RENDERINGS COURTESY OF CITY REALTY

The future of NYC's skyline

In the renderings that predict what the skyline will look like in 2020, the Financial District is “seeing a boom in new construction and conversions.”

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Residential real estate is continuing to change the city's skyline and propel an already booming market — with new apartment sales “expected to reach a level not seen since last decade's boom cycle by 2018.”

This statement is outlined in CityRealty's Manhattan New Development Report, released Tuesday, which explored new development in Manhattan over the next five years and beyond.

Focusing on condominium development, the report found that estimated condominium sales will be about $30 billion through 2019. In total, there are 92 condominium projects with roughly 8,000 new apartments under construction or proposed.

CityRealty noted a change in development style over the past eight years: “Instead of focusing on quantity of apartments, developers are creating buildings with fewer apartments, but at higher price-points.”

In 2014, the average price of new units was at an all-time high of $4.8 million, dropping to $3.7 million in 2015. The average price is expected to reach $4.4 million this year and will continue to increase in subsequent years. By 2016 the average price per square foot will increase to an estimated $2,280 and reach $2,540 in 2018.

Beyond the numbers, the reports showed where these developments will pop up, and the date and estimated price of their sales. There are even renderings showing how residential real estate will change the Manhattan skyline by 2010.

“While condominium development has been largely centered on Midtown recently, the Financial District is seeing a boom in new construction and conversions,” CityRealty stated in its report.

About 1,250 new apartments are anticipated for the neighborhood in the next few years.

One of these developments will be One Manhattan. At 80 stories, it's set to be the second-largest condominium ever constructed in the borough. According to CityRealty, the 815-apartment building located near the foot of the Manhattan Bridge will have include a putting green, 70-seat movie theater and a covered dog run, and has been marketed to prospective buyers in Asia.

An NYPD cop who was seriously injured after a man attacked him and his fellow officers with an 18-inch hatchet two years ago has been honored with the department's highest award.

Police Officer Kenneth Healey was on patrol on Oct. 23, 2014 with three other officers on Jamaica Avenue in Queens when a man ran towards them with a metal hatchet.

The attacker — later identified as 32-year-old Zale Thompson — struck Healey in the back of the head and also hit another officer in the arm with the weapon.

Police shot and killed Thompson, who was ranting about American society, according to CBS2 New York. A bystander was struck by a bullet when cops shot at the suspect.

In the days following the attack, Police Commissioner Bill Bratton called it an act of terror and Thompson, who had converted to Islam, had

On Tuesday morning, Healey — who suffered a shattered skull and required undergoing numerous surgeries after the attack — was given the Medal of Honor during the NYPD 2016 Medal Ceremony.

Police Officer Joseph Meeker, who was struck in the arm during the attack, received the Medal of Valor, and the other two officers involved in the incident — Taylor Kraft and Peter Rivera — were given the police Combat Cross.

"A lot of people who receive this award are no longer with us, so it's definitely an honor to receive such a high award from the department," Healey told NBC4 New York. "If I could go back in time, I wish nothing like this would [have] ever happened. But I'm still here and it's definitely an honor," he said.

Healey has since returned to work on desk duty and said he is slowly progressing from his injuries.

Man orders bagel at Zabar's eatery, shoots self in leg

Cops followed the trail of blood.

JASON NUCKOLLS
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

A man carrying a concealed gun at Zabar's, a popular Upper West Side restaurant and store, accidentally shot himself after ordering a bagel then limped away from the scene on foot.

On Tuesday morning, police found the Zabar's customer, 48, at nearby Roosevelt Hospital where he had walked to get help treating a bullet wound in his right leg, ABC7 reported. The gun he was carrying discharged when he reached into his pocket after ordering a bagel and coffee.

ner of Broadway and West 80th Street, the Daily News added.

After he left the scene of the shooting, police commenced an investigation in which they followed a blood trail to Riverside Park before finding the suspect, who is homeless, at the hospital, ABC7 added. He reportedly told police that he had found the gun on West 39th Street.

"This is happening all over," Rose Marie Tichler, who lives around Zabar's, told the Daily News. "It never happened at Zabar's before. Never!"

Police were still investigating the incident and holding the shooter on an outstanding warrant for an unrelated narcotics arrest, according to ABC7.

Obama, Clinton criticize Trump for proposed ban on Muslims

Obama and Hillary Clinton made nearly simultaneous speeches responding to Trump, who is soon to become the Republican Party's presidential nominee.

President Barack Obama lambasted Donald Trump's proposed ban on Muslim immigrants on Tuesday in an angry denunciation of the Republican presidential candidate's response to the Orlando nightclub massacre.

The president and Hillary Clinton, the Democrat he has endorsed to succeed him in the Nov. 8 general election, made nearly simultaneous speeches responding to Trump, the New York mogul who is soon to become the Republican Party's presidential nominee.

Clearly annoyed, Obama used a speech at the Treasury Department to respond to Trump's proposed suspension of immigration from countries with a "history of terrorism" in response to the killing of 49 people early on Sunday in Orlando, Florida. The gunman was U.S.-born Omar Mateen, 29, whose parents immigrated from Afghanistan.

The president, without mentioning Trump by name, dismissed the Republican's criticism of Obama for not using the term "radical Islamic terrorism" to describe Islamic State militants. Obama called the phrase a political distraction.

"What exactly would using this label accomplish, what exactly would it change?" Obama said. "Someone seriously thinks we don't know who we're fighting? ...

"We now have proposals from the presumptive Republican nominee for president of the United States to bar all Muslims from immigrating to America. We hear language that singles out immigrants and suggests entire religious communities are complicit in violence. ... Where does this stop?" President Obama There's no magic to the phrase 'radical Islam.' It's a political talking point."

Obama, who canceled a joint appearance with Clinton planned on Wednesday in Wisconsin due to the events in Orlando, appeared to be enjoying his role in the campaign to select his successor. He tangled with Trump in 2011, producing his birth certificate to refute Trump's claim that the president was not born in the United States.

Clinton, Obama's former secretary of state, addressed supporters in Pittsburgh. The candidate said Trump's proposal bolstered her case that he was temperamentally unfit to serve as president, saying the commander in chief "is a job that demands a calm, collected and dignified response" to events like the Orlando massacre.

Clinton noted that Trump seemed to suggest on Monday in a television interview that Obama might have somehow been responsible for the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history, a point that Trump said he did not make.

"I have to ask: Will responsible Republican leaders stand up to their presumptive nominee or will they stand by his accusation about our president?" she said.

The biting criticism was likely to increase the discomfort among many establishment Republican leaders about Trump with little more than a month until party figures gather in Cleveland to formally nominate him. REUTERS

Wife of Orlando shooter could soon face charges

Omar Mateen, who was shot dead by police after a three-hour standoff early on Sunday, left behind a tangled trail of possible motives.

The wife of the gunman who killed 49 people at an Orlando gay nightclub could soon be charged in connection with the attack, the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history, a law enforcement source said on Tuesday.

FoxNews.com, citing an FBI source, said prosecutors had convened a grand jury to investigate Omar Mateen's wife, Noor Salman. They are seeking to charge her as an accessory to 49 counts of murder and 53 counts of attempted murder and failure to notify law enforcement about the pending attack and lying to federal agents.

NBC News, citing multiple unnamed sources, said Salman told federal agents she tried to talk her husband out of carrying out the attack. But she also told the FBI she once drove him to the nightclub, Pulse, because he wanted to scope it out, the network said.

Mateen, who was shot to death by police after a three-hour standoff at the club early on Sunday, called 911 during his rampage to profess allegiance to various militant Islamist groups.

Federal investigators have said he was likely self-radicalized and there was no evidence that he received any instruction or aid from outside groups such as Islamic State. Mateen, 29, was a U.S. citizen, born in New York of Afghan immigrant parents.

"He appears to have been an angry, disturbed, unstable young man who became radicalized," President Barack Obama told reporters after a meeting of the White House National Security Council.

One official familiar with the investigation, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said investigators were only beginning to delve into the contents of Mateen's cellphone and other electronic devices.

The source said investigators believe Mateen browsed militant Islamist material on the internet for two years or more before the Orlando shootings.

Orlando shooter was employee of global security firm G4S

Before Sunday morning, few Americans had heard of Orlando gunman Omar Mateen's British headquartered employer, G4S, the world's largest global security firm, which employs more than 610,000 people in 110 countries.

In the United States alone, G4S security guards stand watch over airports, water and power plants, nuclear facilities, immigration transportation and even, as in the case of Mateen, gated communities.

Since 2008, G4S Secure Solutions — the company's American subsidiary — has received nearly $830 million worth of federal, state and local government contracts, including for the Department of Homeland Security, according to the SmartProcure database.

G4S made headlines in 2012 when it announced it could not provide the promised 10,400 security guards only two weeks before the London Olympics. The announcement wiped $1 billion off its market value and the British government had to draft in thousands of troops as reinforcements.

Baby Boomers May Avoid Knee Surgery With Modern Arthritis Treatments

Doctors say these two factors are the keys to knee arthritis treatment success and relieving pain without surgery

By Matt Edgar

America's Health Writer

New York City - Everyone has said it at one time or another. If I had only known about "this" sooner - things would be very different today.

That's what many knee arthritis pain sufferers are saying about this technology and treatment.

"We all know that countless lives are being saved every year because of early detection and better treatment" noted the clinic director at the NY Pain MD in New York City. "The same holds true for treating arthritis pain. I believe we are having so much success at NY Pain MD because of two factors: One is we are using advanced medical technology and treatments a lot of clinics do not use. And second, the word has spread to our community and so many knee arthritis sufferers are coming in sooner. And the earlier we can treat knee arthritis - the better the results. The key to trying to avoid knee replacement surgery is doing the correct treatment as soon as possible"

What is the "correct treatment?"

"That depends," said the director. "There is no one answer when it comes to medical conditions. Knee arthritis is no different. That's why, if you have knee pain, you should have it evaluated by a doctor who deals with and treats knee pain every day," added the director.

For many knee arthritis pain sufferers the right treatment is Viscosupplementation whereby a preparation of Hyaluronic acid a gel-like FDA approved medicine is applied directly into the knee joint using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Hyaluronic acid is the natural lubricant and shock absorber of your joints and is found to be decreased in arthritis sufferers. This is similar to running your without oil. Obviously, the sooner you put oil back in the car - the less damage will be done. That's why some doctors feel early viscosupplementation gets the best results and is so important for avoiding surgery.

The director believes one of the most important factors for the success of viscosupplementation is making sure you are getting it into the joint space precisely. That's why the doctors at NY Pain MD use advanced imaging technology to apply Precision Arthritis Targeting during every treatment.

A device called the "C-Arm" allows the doctor to see into the joint and actually watch the medicine be applied exactly where it is supposed to. Research shows that performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting (P.A.T.) can result in missing the joint space as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation treatments without Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology and did not get good results - this may be why.

"If you have knee arthritis pain, viscosupplementation might be the answer you are looking for. The keys are to not wait, get a good evaluation from an expert and make sure precision arthritis targeting is used to make sure you have the best chance for success."

Can This Be Avoided? Total knee replacement is serious surgery requiring months of rehabilitation. Some doctors think modern treatments done early enough can keep baby boomers from going under the knife.

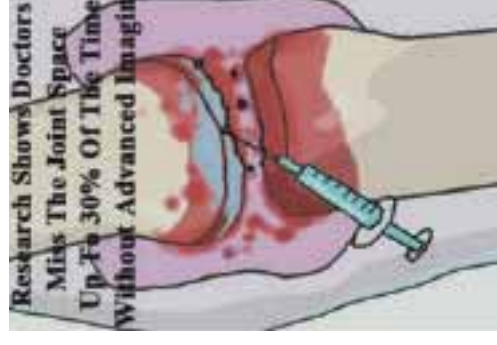

Everyone Wants Proof: In the artist simulated drawings above, picture #1 is a normal, pain-free knee. There is no arthritis and the knee can move and bend freely without pain.

Pain - The red is a knee joint with painful osteoarthritis. With progressive "drying out", arthritis causes the joint space to decrease and an array of symptoms which may include grinding, stiffness, decreased motion, bone spurs, swelling and a lot of pain.

Successful Treatment - Treatment (blue) being applied directly into the knee joint using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology. Advanced imaging allows treatments to be as precise as possible. Viscosupplementation can lubricate the joint and decrease pain.

Failed Treatment - the medicine misses the joint space. Research shows this occurs up to 30% of the time without the use of Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology to guide the injection. This is why prior treatment may not have worked for you.

Knee Pain Screenings Offered To Help Determine If New York Metro Area Residents Qualify For Popular Treatment

Knee pain sufferers have limited time to claim knee pain screening to see if all-natural knee arthritis treatment might work for them

If you qualify for this treatment, it might be one of the happiest days of your life.

That's because, for the past year and a half, hundreds of knee pain sufferers have flocked to NY Pain MD New York City.

That's when their specially trained-doctors added Hyalgan treatments to their already successful comprehensive knee pain relief program.

Viscosupplementation is unique because - even though it is manufactured by a pharmaceutical company, it is NOT considered a drug because it is a natural substance with an incredible story.

Why So Many Want It

You see, when you suffer with arthritis - the lubricating fluid (synovial fluid) in your knee joint dries up.

This means instead of gliding smoothly - your bones start to rub and grind against each other.

This causes a little pain in the beginning - but over time the pain steadily gets worse until it is excruciating.

Like "Joint Oil"

Viscosupplementation works so well because it is like "joint oil." It is a natural substance that contains one of the natural building blocks of the synovial fluid that lubricates your knee.

Scientists and researchers discovered this natural building block to synovial fluid in the rooster's comb - that big red thing on top of the roosters head. It is extracted from the roosters comb, purified and concentrated. They have also developed medical lubricants that are also natural but made a bit like yogurt and "cultured" into highly effective arthritis pain-fighting medical lubricants.

When introduced directly into your knee joint, it is like squirting oil on a rusty door hinge.

Viscosupplementation allows your joints to glide more smoothly eliminating a lot of the rubbing, grinding and pain.

Can Supplements Do The Same Thing?

No. Glucosamine and chondroitin and other supplements are much different. You can only get this from a doctor and it often helps knee pain sufferers who got limited or no success from glucosamine and chondroitin. Beware of unsubstantiated claims made by supplements to do what this advanced medical procedure does.

Why You Should Try This Even If You've Already Had Similar Treatments Without Results...

"We have been able to help so many knee pain sufferers - even many who have already tried other treatments like Synvisc, Supartz, Orthovisc and even Hyalgan. This is because our treating doctors always use "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology". This allows us to place the Viscosupplementation exactly where it needs to be. Studies show doctors doing joint injections without technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time." noted the Director of Center

NY Pain MD is a state of the art medical facility offering only the best technology.

And that's not all :

"Every case is individual. Some patients get quite a bit of relief right away - others take a little more time. But most have been extremely happy. We've noted results lasting no less than 6 months for many but up to 2 years for some patients. Patients who were suffering for years with bad knee pain are getting their lives back... going for walks again and exercising. It's amazing to see. They tell all their friends - that's why we are swarmed. After getting treatment and feeling better, many patients have decided to cancel their total knee replacement surgeries." added the director.

How To Find Out If It Can Help You?

If you have knee pain, the NY Pain MD doctors would like to invite you for a no-obligation screening to see if you are a candidate for their treatments using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Many Insurance Plans Participate:

*Most Out-Of-Network Insurance Plans
United Healthcare In & Out Of Network (except the Community Plan)

Advanced Medical Technology Can Make All The Difference: This advanced Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology using fluoroscopic imaging allows doctors to see directly into the knee joint so treatments are precise and the FDA approved lubricating medicine actually goes EXACTLY where it is supposed to. Studies show that procedures done without this technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time. This is one reason Viscosupplementation may not have worked for you in the past. NY Pain MD uses this P.A.T. Imaging Technology, with each and every treatment.

All you have to do is call 800-227-KNEE (5633) right now and when the scheduling specialist answers the phone tell her you would like your no obligation "Knee Pain Screening." The doctors at NY Pain MD can only accept a limited amount of new patients each month for this screening - so if you are interested please call now. Your no obligation screening will only take about 25-30 minutes... you will get all your questions answered and leave knowing if you have possibly found the solution to your knee pain.

And here's something really important - Viscosupplementation treatments are covered by most insurance, union plans and even medicare. To schedule your no obligation screening or if you have any questions:

US court backs landmark internet equal-access rules

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit backed the FCC's so-called net neutrality rules put in place last year to make internet service providers treat all internet traffic equally.

A U.S. appeals court Tuesday upheld the Obama administration's landmark rules barring internet service providers from obstructing or slowing down consumer access to web content, dealing a blow to big cable and mobile phone companies. The rules prohibited broadband providers from giving or selling access to speedy internet, essentially a "fast lane" on the web's information superhighway.

In siding with the FCC, the court treated the internet like a public utility and opened the door to further government internet regulations.

The ruling was a big victory for President Barack Obama, a strong advocate of net neutrality rules who has said the internet long has been organized around principles of openness, fairness and freedom without gatekeepers or "toll roads."

But the fight may not be over. The internet services providers that sued to block the regulations said they would appeal either to the full appellate court or to the Supreme Court, and telecommunications industry groups said they would redouble efforts to get Congress to limit the FCC's authority.

Opponents of the regulations said the FCC exceeded its authority and condemned the ruling

Net neutrality is a major issue for broadband providers like Verizon, Comcast and AT&T, which fear the rules may make it harder to manage internet traffic and make investment to provide additional capacity less likely. GETTY IMAGES as an endorsement of investment-chilling public-utility regulation.

Democrats in Congress praised the ruling. But Sen. John Thune, a South Dakota Republican who chairs the Commerce Committee, said the decision upholds FCC "restrictions designed for the monopoly-telephone era." He said the Republican-led Congress needs to step in to overturn a decision that results in "a highly political agency micromanaging the internet ecosystem."

The ruling boosted the FCC in its bid to complete action on major internet privacy rules before the end of the year.

FCC Chairman Tom Wheeler said the "ruling is a victory for consumers and innovators who deserve unfettered access to the entire web, and it ensures the internet remains a platform for unparalleled innovation, free expression and economic growth."

Led Zeppelin's 'Stairway to Heaven' goes on trial

Led Zeppelin singer Robert Plant and guitarist Jimmy Page appeared in a Los Angeles court for a civil trial that opened Tuesday in which they are accused of stealing the opening chords of their 1971 classic "Stairway to Heaven" from another band.

Plant, 67, and Page, 72, did not speak to each other or their lawyers as they appeared in federal court. Both sported long gray hair and Page wore three-piece suits.

The lawsuit alleges that the opening chords of their song was stolen from the 1967 instrumental "Taurus" by the band Spirit.

U.S. District Judge Gary Klausner in Los Angeles said in April that a jury might find "substantial" similarity between the first two minutes of "Stairway" and "Taurus," and to let it decide whether Plant and Page were liable for copyright infringement.

Trial in the case was set to begin Tuesday with jury selection, followed by opening arguments.

The lawsuit was brought by Michael Skidmore, a trustee for the late Randy Wolfe, also known as Randy

California, Spirit's guitarist and composer of "Taurus."

Skidmore said Page may have been inspired to write "Stairway" for Led Zeppelin after hearing Spirit perform "Taurus" while the bands toured together in 1968 and 1969, but that Wolfe never received credit. REUTERS

Is this Justin Bieber's new GF?

It looks like Justin Bieber isn't just loving himself these days.

The 22-year-old pop singer reportedly flew "Transformers 4" actress Nicola Peltz out to visit him in Canada, where he is on tour. The two were photographed getting into a car together in Toronto. "Justin and Nicola are definitely dating and it's really heating up," an insider told HollywoodLife.com.

Though they've been keeping their meetings on the down low, this isn't the first time Bieber has been linked to the 21-year-old actress. They were first spotted getting dinner together in Beverly Hills back in May. Given that the

Spousal support? No, thanks, says Amber Heard

Amber Heard has withdrawn her request for $50,000-a-month spousal support from estranged husband Johnny Depp. The actress originally filed the declaration with her initial divorce request, but was declined. According to court documents obtained by E! News, Heard, who was accused of making false claims for cash, says the original monetary request was "used against me to distract and divert the public away from the very serious real issue of domestic violence."

Heard's temporary restraining order against Depp is set to bring the two to court Friday for a hearing, after which the actress's lawyer says she is free to refile for support. The "Danish Girl" star filed for divorce May 23, with claims of physical and psychological abuse from her husband of 15 months. Following the restraining order hearing, Heard's attorney told E! she could seek up to a "maximum of 30 months for spousal support" due to their short marriage.

Someone stole $500K from Kevin Hart

Comedian Kevin Hart is not laughing. The actor was robbed of goods worth half a million dollars over the weekend, reports TMZ. Hart's California home is located in a heavily gated community with two guards, but that didn't stop the thief from prying open the backdoor and stealing jewelry, clothing and other personal items. This all happened while Hart and his family were in Miami promoting his new movie "Central Intelligence." When the actor returned home, he noticed the theft and contacted authorities. Police do not believe it was an inside job and are reviewing surveillance footage to find more information. This is the fourth celebrity robbery in the last month;

Kanye West, Black Chyna and Scott Disick have also been victims. Looks like Hart needs some "central intelligence" to crack this case.

Shia LaBeouf embarks on hitchhiking expedition

Don't be alarmed! The rugged bearded man standing on the side of the road is not a homeless person — in fact, it's none other than "Even Stevens" star Shia LaBeouf. And this time it seems as if he's taken his role in "Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull" a bit too seriously.

But why? LaBeouf is hitchhiking through the U.S. for the sake of "art."

The "Transformers" leading man and artist pals Nastja Rönkkö and Luke Turner started their adventure in May. The trio have hit cities in Utah, Detroit, New Orleans and Pennsylvania. On Sunday night, LaBeouf was spotted on a boat in Manitowoc, Wisconsin. Earlier this week he was seen making his way through Minnesota. Let's not forget, this is for art, people.

So how does one find Mr. LaBeouf? It's simple: A set of GPS coordinates are posted via his Twitter, @thecampaignbook, then the three friends wait for someone to pick them up. Their trip is being covered by internet hipster news outlet Vice and can be followed by visiting takemeanywhere.vice.com or with hashtag #takemeanywhere. Just yesterday, the ticker was making its way along Interstate 90, where LaBeouf was cruising through Minnesota into South Dakota.

Frances O'Connor gets her own fright night

An acclaimed actress gets the chance to scream a lot in "The Conjuring 2."

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

Like most of the cast of "The Conjuring 2," Frances O'Connor is not a horror actor. She's an acclaimed thespian, the star of 1999's "Mansfield Park" as well as Steven Spielberg's "A.I.," the 2002 take on "The Importance of Being Earnest" and the show "The Missing," for which she scored a Golden Globe nomination.

But like co-stars Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson, she found shooting James Wan's second haunted house grinder to be artistically fulfilling. O'Connor, 48, plays Peggy, the harried low-income mother of four whose English council home is (allegedly!) terrorized by an evil spirit.

As a parent it must be rough getting in the headspace that Peggy goes to — not just trying to protect her kids from potentially supernatural forces, but being so brash.

I really hope I'm a better parent. [Laughs] Peggy's not really PC in the way she parents. But she is a '70s parent: She's always stressed, she shouts at her kids, but ultimately she loves them so much and would protect them with her life. There's a scene where I give my son cookies before he goes to bed, which is such a parenting no-no. I love that she does stuff like that.

You've mostly done dramas and had only done one horror film, "Mercy," before this. Were you itching to try this type of film?

Not really. It's kind of fun to go, "Oooh, let's see what being in this genre is like." But ultimately I feel it's all the same. You're still telling a story, though perhaps in a more technical way.

As an actor used to characters, how did you adjust to something that's often so technical?

The scene where I'm woken up by the kids screaming and the drawers go slamming across the room — that was all one take. So it felt like it was really happening. It makes your job easier, because you can react to what's happening at the moment. There are other moments that are very artificial and you have to generate it. You have to really concentrate and come up with the goods.

Real or make-believe?

The real-life Enfield Haunting is a hotly contested case, with skeptics pointing out inconsistencies, even fakery. Where do you stand having made a movie about it?

The producer got a hold of the guy who took those photos [during the alleged haunting]. He thought there was something genuinely happening in the house. Even if it wasn't supernatural, it was maybe a kinetic force. There's so much weight on both sides of the argument that it's hard to know if it really happened.

It can be tough being coldly rational when you're confronted with traumatized people who claim they've encountered something paranormal.

Those kids, now as grown-ups, are still kind of freaked out. That event has affected the rest of their lives. Some of the footage and the photos and all these audio recordings, it's really spooky-looking and listening to them. I don't know. I can't say definitively whether it happened or not. It's very convincing if it's not true.

What to see at this year's BAMcinemaFest

Stuff gets real at this year's parade of indie biggies, running through June 26. Here are eight to check out; visit bam.org for more. MATT PRIGGE

'DARK NIGHT'

One of two titles about real mass shootings (the other being "Newtown"), Tim Sutton's dreamy, haunting indie uses the 2012 Aurora massacre more as inspiration than foundation. Sutton follows multiple people fated to be involved one way or another with death. Apart from the boredom of small town life, what comes across is the hostility bubbling under society, particularly with the men.

TIM SUTTON

'THE CHILDHOOD OF A LEADER'

The directorial debut of American actor Brady Corbet oozes a Euro vibe, no doubt due to his stints with Lars Von Trier ("Melancholia") and Michael Haneke ("Funny Games"). As promised, Corbet dwells entirely on the early days of an unspecified fascist tyrant born out of the ashes of World War I. The result is kind of an art film twist on "The Omen," one short on trashy thrills but still heavy on jangled nerves.

AGATHA A. NITECKA

'LO AND BEHOLD, REVERIES OF THE CONNECTED WORLD'

Werner Herzog is a brand now — a funny-voiced oddball often in on the gag. But he's still serious, even when he's not particularly deep. Case in point: "Lo and Behold" is essentially "Werner Herzog Takes on the Internet." What he finds could be said by any think piece-writing drone: the good (medical advances, etc.) doesn't quite outweigh the bad. Herzog's real gifts are for unfettered curiosity and locating fellow eccentrics, and "Lo" is at its best when it gets slightly off topic, or entertains the notion that future humans preferring robots over humans might not be so bad.

'KATE PLAYS CHRISTINE'

GRASSHOPPER FILMS

A movie about the making of a movie that should never be made, Robert Greene's quasicod is a house of mirrors that resists clarification. Trailing indie god Kate Lyn Sheil, it shows her prepping for and wrestling with playing Christine Chubbuck, the Florida reporter who in 1974 shot herself on live TV. The film-within-the-film is quickly shown to be ghoulish, but the film itself is all about raising unanswered questions: about performance, about ethics, about our demonization of "crazy" women and about preserving the dead.

'AUTHOR: THE JT LEROY STORY'

A decade is long enough for dust to settle, meaning it's time Laura Albert — aka JT LeRoy, the hot young male novelist who wrote about drug addiction and gender confusion, but who was actually a middle-aged woman — got her due. As he did with "The Devil and Daniel Johnston," documentarian Jeff Feuerzeig hands the subject the reins, letting Albert tell the story from her side. It's a wild tale, and never more moving than when it's dwelling on the idea of how Albert knew she wasn't cool enough to become a cool writer with lots of celebrity friends.

'NEWTOWN'

No film in the lineup — or the earth — is harder to watch right now than Kim A. Snyder's look at the Sandy Hook massacre. "Newtown" might not be able to bear such weight: Those expecting an anguished symphony à la Spike Lee's "When the Levees Broke" will have to settle for a modest ditty, one that could always stand to have tighter focus. And yet it's still gutting. Snyder's focus on a handful of individuals — mostly surviving parents who can't get through a sentence without choking up — means less time to delve into the community at large. But those testimonials hurt.

KIM A. SNYDER

'LAST NIGHT AT THE ALAMO'

A honky-tonk obscurity coated in cheap beer and a permanent cigarette stink, Eagle Pennell's exhumed 1983 regional indie broods down in a Texas dive bar on the eve of its demolition. Colorful characters abound, usually yelling at the girlfriends they've pissed off, all in glorious 16 mm black-and-white. It may play like a Deep South "Clerks," but Pennell has more filmmaking chops than Kevin Smith ever has, and his actors tow the line between just-good-enough and can't-fake-it real.

CINECOM PICTURES

'THE ALCHEMIST COOKBOOK'

The hero of Joel Potrykus' latest look at the bored and clueless (after last year's instant classic "Buzzard") plays like "The Evil Dead" where the hero wants to bring the pain. A young hermit ("Gimme the Loot's" Ty Hickson) living in the woods decides it's a good idea to play with deadly spirits, and is miffed when they're not quick to tear his soul apart. As ever, Potrykus has a feel for idle time-wasting and deadpan hijinks. If he's not as strong this round, he confirms himself as a true eccentric with a deep affinity for society's happy outcasts.

Animal house: Creating a pet-friendly home

While you may not need a doggie spa, you do need to reconsider that couch.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Real estate, as they say, is all about location, location, location.

But life, or course, is never that simple, especially when family is involved. These days, even the four-legged members get a say.

In a recent survey, the American Pet Products Association found that 44 percent of households in the U.S. own at least one dog, and the market is responding.

In California, Standard Pacific Homes offers a 170-square foot "pet suite" — complete with a bathing station, laundry facilities, a flat-screen TV and dog-run access — as an option in its Orange County development. Manhattan high-rises have been catering to pet owners for years, although amenities like the Mercedes House's Canine Club — with "cage-free" doggie day care — are changing the game. While an on-site doggie spa may seem a little extreme, taking your pet's needs into consideration is a smart move. "More and more, my clients bring up their pets," says interior designer Nan Ruvel, who has created everything from specialized mudrooms for messy pups to custom litter-box "bathrooms" for cats. "And I encourage that. You really want to make sure the space works for the entire family."

Be realistic

Like children, animals put some limitations on decor. "With pets, it's important to be realistic, and I make sure my clients understand that," says Ruvel, who shares her home with two cats and two dogs. Her tip: "No wall-to-wall carpet."

Fabrics are key

Many a couch has met its demise at the claws of a scratch-happy cat. But if you shop smart, you can extend the life of your furniture. "Most people think the durable fabrics are better, but whenever you have a nubby weave, that's something claws will hook into, and leather tears very easily," says Ruvel. "Cheaper fabrics, especially microfibers, are easier to clean and hold up better to pets."

Make a floor plan

Accidents happen, which is why wood floors have long-been the gold-standard for pet owners. "Choose a hard wood, and avoid anything too dark that will show scratches easily," advises Ruvel. If you can't quite give up your carpets, Ruvel recommends opting for wool.

When the Obamas buy your house

Here's an inside look at 415 Greenwich St. PROVIDED

Power couple renting their D.C. home to the first family buys Tribeca pad for $5.5M.

LLNYC focuses on high-end apartment and townhouse listings in Manhattan

Remember how the Obamas are renting a castle in D.C. when they leave the White House? Well the owners of said castle, Joe and Giovanna Lockhart, have to move somewhere to make room for the first family, and now we know where — according to city records, the Lockharts have just bought a condo at 415 Greenwich St. in Tribeca for $5.5 million.

Joe Lockhart served as the White House press secretary for Bill Clinton from 1998 to 2000, and as of February 2016, he was named the executive vice president of communications for the NFL (hence, his move to New York). Giovanna is the Washington editor of Glamour magazine.

While this new pad is not quite as grand as the pad they're leaving behind in D.C. (few are), the 2,693-square-foot Tribeca condo is not too shabby, with three bedrooms, three-and-a-half bathrooms, a 50-foot glass walled gallery that overlooks the building's courtyard, a balcony and a Creston AV system in every room.

NYCFC looking to get back on track

City will take on the NY Cosmos in U.S. Open Cup play on Wednesday.

TONY WILLIAMS
sports@metro.us

NYCFC is prepping for Wednesday's matchup with the New York Cosmos (7:30 p.m., YES), as the two franchises battle in fourth round action of the U.S. Open Cup.

City is looking for its first derby win against the Cosmos, one of the flagship franchises in the North American Soccer League, and is also looking to earn its first trophy of any kind in the franchise's brief two-year history.

In order to break its schneid and recent lackluster play, City will need to adjust its fledgling defense and get back in synch.

It seems so long ago that NYCFC was the toast of Major League Soccer's Eastern Conference, were within a point of being at the top of the conference, and looking down at their cross-river rivals, the New York Red Bulls. Fast-forward a month, and suddenly City is fourth in the standings, five points behind the Philadelphia

Union — and is now looking up to the Red Bulls as well.

A lot was taken out of City's sails following its disastrous and historic 7-0 home loss to the Red Bulls on May 21, so it's up to head coach Patrick Vieira to help his team right things. City hasn't won a game since, and that's largely due to defensive breakdowns at inopportune moments.

The team has been diligently training on Jack Coffey Field's turf on the campus of Fordham University. Vieira has been running his outfit through split-squad action and re-

City notes

- Besides the lackluster MLS play, Vieira said the turf at Fordham is an additional worry. The Cosmos play their home games on turf at Hofstra University, while City plays on grass — and a bit of infield dirt — at Yankee Stadium. It's not ideal, said Vieira: "It's what we have to cope with [and] not the best to play a Cup game, but that is what we have around and that is what we have to deal with." Fordham's field is 120 yards x 75 yards, which is wider than the Yankee Stadium field.

keeper Eirik Johansen in net. Johansen is a product of the famed Manchester City Academy, but has yet to be used this season.

When all hands are on deck, though, all hands are on deck. Vieira is hoping the extra attention to detail helps City knock off the Cosmos for the first time ever, and kick-starts their MLS run.

"We enter a competition because we want to win. And we want to do well, but it is important for us to regain our focus [and] concentration, and not take this game for granted," Vieira said. "We have to work hard, respect our principles, and match the competitiveness."

City won't return to MLS action until June 18 — after 16 days of a break in action — so besides the goal of advancing in Open Cup play, they are doing everything they can to get the defense back to par, with the stretch run of league action coming to a close.

Jets find it hard to re-sign star players

The Jets may loathe the New England Patriots the most, but closing in hard are the Philadelphia Eagles.

Fresh off re-signing Fletcher Cox to the most lucrative non-quarterback contract in league history, Philadelphia just inadvertently raised the bar in the Jets' negotiations with star defensive end Muhammad Wilkerson.

Cox's bloated deal of six years for $103 million is staggering, considering he may not even be as good a player as Wilkerson. But the average annual salary for Cox ($17 million) and the largest amount of money ever guaranteed to a non-quarterback ($63M) really puts the Jets in a bind.

Gang Green notes

- If the two sides can't come to an agreement on a long-term deal by July 15, Wilkerson would be forced to play with the franchise tag.
- The Jets are also in a hole with "dead money," which is money they're still paying for players no longer on the roster. It currently stands at $7.38 million, with the retired D'Brickshaw Ferguson eating up most of that allotment.

terback ($63M) really puts the Jets in a bind.

The stakes — and asking price — have certainly been raised for a Jets squad with playoff aspirations. Wilkerson's representatives are no doubt using Cox's deal as a metric, and when comparing their careers, it's easy to see why Wilkerson was a no-show at the Jets' organized team activities (OTAs) and likely won't be at this week's mandatory minicamp.

Wilkerson, who has yet to sign his franchise tag, cannot get fined by the team since he's technically not under contract. But the longer he stays away, the higher the chances of acrimony and tension. Wilkerson, who is still rehabbing a surgically-repaired broken leg which he suffered in last season's finale, wouldn't be ready to participate in this week's three-day event anyway. But just the thought of any building hostility can and will delay matters.

While Cox is a fine player, tallying 22 sacks and 162 tackles in his first four seasons, he's no Wilkerson. The Eagles' best defensive player hasn't even recorded a double-digit sack season yet. Wilkerson, by comparison, has notched 36.5 sacks and 184 tackles in his five seasons. TONY WILLIAMS

Aries Plan a relaxing vacation or devote some time to a loved one. Making personal adjustments will lead to a positive plan or a new adventure.

Taurus Ask and you shall receive. Let your intuition and experience guide you when it comes to advancement. Don't let anyone saddle you with responsibilities that don't belong to you.

Gemini Put your plans into motion. Use your power of persuasion to entice others to see and do things your way. Love is in the stars, but temptation will lead you astray.

Cancer Show restraint when asked to keep a secret if you want to avoid damaging your reputation. Concentrate on a creative endeavor or improving yourself or your home.

Leo If you look for a way to help, you will discover a new way to use your skills in a more diverse manner. You will enjoy feeling needed. Romance will enhance your life.

Virgo Observation will be necessary if you want to avoid a scandal. Don't get caught in a position that will make you look bad or incompetent. Bide your time.

Yesterday's answers

Can't wait until tomorrow to check your answers? Visit metro.us

Libra If you give your all, you will get the same in return. Good fortune is around the corner socially, emotionally and financially. A romantic gesture will encourage a positive change.

Scorpio Let your emotions lead the way when it comes to personal matters today. An unusual lifestyle change will help you obtain a lifelong dream.

Sagittarius Serious talks can help smooth over a misunderstanding or disagreement, but honesty will be required in order to bring about the changes you desire.

Capricorn Finish what you start and clear your agenda so you can enjoy some downtime with friends and family. Sharing your ideas will result in support and encouragement.

Aquarius A chance to step into the limelight is apparent, but it must be handled gracefully. Stick to facts and realistic promises. Personal gains look promising.

Pisces Honesty is the best policy when dealing with friends and family. An interesting partnership will be enticing, but you need to iron out the details before you commit. EUGENIA LAST

Take the Trip of a Lifetime on the Causeway Coastal Route.

1) Belfast

2) The Gobbins

3) Cushendun

4) Carrick-a-Rede Rope Bridge

5) Giant's Causeway

6) Old Bushmills

7) Dunluce Castle

8) Derry-Londonderry

One of the "world's great road trips," the Causeway Coastal Route offers 120 miles of natural wonders, breathtaking views and spectacular attractions, including:

1. Belfast

Get things started in Belfast, home of the Titanic and a vibrant city brimming with amazing sightseeing, a thriving music and food scene and more.

2. The Gobbins

Hanging from basalt cliffs directly over the Irish Sea, the Gobbins Cliff Path is an Edwardian masterpiece and one-of-a-kind visitor experience.

3. Cushendun

Stop off in Cushendun, a quaint seaside village with many winding scenic paths, a beautiful seafront, and a trove of delightful shops and pubs.

8. DERRY~LONDONDERRY (Finishing point)

4. Carrick-a-Rede Rope Bridge

Visitors can traverse a deep chasm and take in awesome views on the Carrick-a-Rede Rope Bridge originally erected by salmon fishermen.

5. Giant's Causeway

Northern Ireland's top tourist attraction and a UNESCO World Heritage site, the Giant's Causeway boasts 40,000 basalt columns jutting out into the ocean.

6. Old Bushmills

Experience the unique whiskey-making tradition with a guided tour and tasting at Old Bushmills Distillery, Ireland's oldest working distillery.

7. Dunluce Castle

Dramatically perched on a clifftop, the ruins of Dunluce Castle is one of the most picturesque settings in Ireland dating back to the 14th century.

8. Derry-Londonderry

Last stop: Derry-Londonderry, otherwise known as the Walled City and a place full of character, beautiful sites and fabulous food and history.

Getting there is easy.

With nonstop flights from Newark to Belfast with United Airlines, and additional services from JFK and Newark direct to Dublin (just 1 ½ hours drive to Belfast), Northern Ireland is closer than you think.
